MEMORY OF PRINTERS PRAISED BY ASSOCIATES

Services Held by Members of Columbia Typographical Union Yesterday.

Services in memory of the forty-two members of the union who died during the past year were held yesterday afternoon by members of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, in the auditorlum of the Typographical Temple. Addresses were made by the officers of the union in praise of the departed members, but underneath the surface there was more than the usual sorrow felt. caused by the recent disclosure of the guilt of the McNamara brothers, which threw a shadow upon the meeting, adding to the deep feeling that prevailed among the audience.

Organized Labor for Law.

Although no direct mention was made of the McNamaras, the address of President F. C. Roberts showed clearly that the meeting was marred by the shame of the McNamaras. He told the members of the union that they should not now be grieved that their brothers had selected two such men as leaders, as organized labor did not recognize such deeds of violence and stood for law and order.

Representative A. O. Stanley of Kentucky delivered an oration, in which he said: "Too many are apt to criticise organized labor because of the acts of some of its officers. The acts of the individuals should not be taken as the acts of organized labor when they are directly con-trary to the teachings of trade unionism." Labor unions everywhere are condemning the bad men in their midst, he said, and are eager to see the law take its course Channing Williams Lefebvre, organist of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, played a piano selection and the choir of that church sang the anthem "Whose Dwelleth." Other selections were a solo by Miss Ethel Lee, cellist; trio, violin, cello and plano, Miss Ruby tSanford, Miss Ethel Lee and Mr. Lefebvre, and a solo by Miss Florence Girouard.

Roll of the Departed.

Secretary George G. Seibold read the roll of the departed members, the ritual being made impressive by the intense silence that followed the reading of each name. Following is the list of the fortytwo members who died within last year: Charles F. Fletcher, James M. Matile. Thomas C. Pursel, William D. Thornton, Ira M. Ingalls, Robert L. Glenn, John A. landiboe, William C. Sefton, Frank P. appincott, John I. Loughran, John Bender, Thomas W. Howard, Millard J. Robert D. Walton Baker, George N. Coe, Charles F. Garrette, Emma F.
